ORANGE YOU GLAD

For this game you'll need a few oranges. Form two teams. Line each team up with one orange per team. The object is to pass the orange to the end of the line and back again by using only your neck and chin. If you drop the orange, you have to start back at the beginning. The first team to pass their orange back and forth without dropping it wins.

GIVE ME FIVE

Players form a circle, cross arms with players on either side of you, and lay your hands flat on the table or floor. Someone is picked to start the pat and each hand pats the table in its turn. If someone pats their hand twice, then the direction changes and the patting goes the other way. Remember, your arms are crossed so you have to watch carefully and wait your turn to pat! If someone lifts their hand to pat when it is not their turn, or does not pat when it is their turn, that hand is out. Play continues until there is only one hand that has not made a mistake left in the circle.

CHARADES

Cut out these movie, book, TV, and character titles or add your own for charades. You'll also need a stopwatch, notepad, and pencil for scorekeeping, plus two containers for the slips.

TO PLAY

Divide the players into two teams of equal size. Fold the slips of paper in half and divide between the two teams. Select a neutral timekeeper/scorekeeper, or pick members from each team to take turns.

A player from Team A draws a slip from Team B's basket. After he/she has had a short time to review the slip the player then has three minutes to act out the phrase for the rest of Team A to guess. If they figure it out, the timekeeper records how long it took. If they do not figure it out in three minutes, the timekeeper announces that the time is up, and records a time of three minutes. Then a player from Team B draws a phrase slip from Team A's basket, and play proceeds for Team B as above.

To act out a phrase, start by indicating what category the phrase is in, and how many words are in the phrase, then act out the words one at a time. The team with the most correct answers in the shortest amount of time wins.
